THE CHINESE NAVY.

Captain Maclure, who arrives in this country shor ly, has (say a correspondent of the Liverpool Post) been commissioned by the Chinese Government to give extensive shipbuilding orders. The Government in Peking has determined to create a strong pavy, and is prepared to spend a large sum in providing itself with a new first Mr. Maclure is authorised, it is understeed, to place orders in this country for ironclads. armed cruisers and torpedo-boats. It will take years, of course, to provide a navy such as the Chinese Government desires, and if that work be secured for this country it will give employment to yards on the Clyde, the Mersey and the Type for a long time to come. There is, however, a great risk that, in consequence of the struggle now raging on the Clyde and at Beliest, a part, if not the whole, of the work may go past this country altogether.

CONQUEST BY CONSULATE.

Our Foreign Office will not be unobservant, it may be safely assumed, of M. Hanotaux's methods of gaining influence for France in China. That able Minister did not intend, it was clear, to allow the treaty rights he lately obtained from Pekin to lie idle. He asked the Budget Committee of the Chamber for a lrige augmentation of the diplomatic vote, to enable him to establish additional consulates in Southern China. During the last twelve months, the Quai d'Orsay has proceeded on much the same lines in Slam, where the business of manufacturing "French subjects" out of native materials goes on merrily. Indeed, so saifsfactory is the progress already accomplished that the Estafette gravely proposed s day or two back to take a plebiscite in Slam as to whether France or England should take over the country. The new consulates in Southern China will, no doubt, play into the hands of these older ones, and vice versa, greatly to the adventage of French influence and commerce, Happ'ly, "conquest by consulate" is a game at which England has shown no little skill in times past, and it would not surprise us were Lord Salisbury to over-trump M. THE BURNING OF THE "AVOCA"

Singapore, December 16th. This morning the Captain and crew of the Avoca, which was recentlyburnt at sea, arrived at Singapore from Batavia by the General Pel. From Captain Millichap, who was in command of the ill-fated vessel, our representative obtained the following details of the catas- December 25, Moyune, British steamer, for tropbe:--

The Avoca left Calcutta with a cargo of jute, for Boulogne, on October 5th. All went well until the 27th when, in lat. 3 S. and long, 90 E., the first indications of fire were observed, smoke issuing from one of the air shafts. Steps were at once taken to subdue what did not threaten December 25, Kwangles, Chinese steamer, for to be a very serious outbreak, and after about an hour's work it seemed as through the efforts | December 25, Taksang; British sir., for Canton. taking off the main hatch, however, dense yolumes of smoke at once enveloped the ship, and though the cargo in the hatchway appeared to be safe, the seat of the confisgration was indicated in the fore end. Hose was got out, and patent extinguishers, and while these attempts to stay the fire were made the cargo in the main hold was jettisoned as rapidly as possible. This work was very difficult and dangerous owing to the dense smoke, which almost blinded the crew. Again and again the men were driven from their labours, and when later in the day flames were seen issuing from the lower hold, there was little hops of effectually preventing the spread of the fire. Nevertheless, all on board stuck maniply to their work, and strove night and day to try save the ship. Recognising that but a small chance remained, of conquering the fire, the Captain headed the ship, under all sail, the castward, steering for the west coast Sumatra which was the nearest land. The three boats were provisioned for forty or fifty days, one being lowered and towed astern on the first alarm, and the other two held in readings with the davits swung outboard. Fortunately, assistance from the light airs prevailing, On the 28th, after incessant exertions, all the boats were lowered and the Captain's wife and most of the crew left the ship, as, at that time, the forepart of the vessel was in fi mes. The Captain and main remained on board as long as their endurance could stand it, and then abandoned their blazing ereft. During the night of the 28th the ship presented a weird and splendid spectacle, the lurid fismes enveloping her masts and rising to a height of thirty or forty feet. The 28th, when the boats finally left the scene of the calamity, it was squally and wet, but afterwards the calmest of weather prevailed and really the only
